

Lendlease appoints new Director of Town Planning

London, 12 December 2017: Leading property and infrastructure group, Lendlease, has appointed Lucy Bird as Director of Town Planning.

Lucy joins Lendlease from the Berkeley Group where she was Head of Planning for their St William Division (a Joint Venture between Berkeley and National Grid) and previously for their Berkeley Homes North East London Division, leading planning for a significant number of complex regeneration sites and redevelopment projects across London and the South East including 5,500 homes at Woodberry Down.

An experienced professional with over thirteen years' experience in town planning, Lucy has also held senior planning roles at the Greater London Authority, where she worked on numerous high-profile schemes for the previous Mayor including the Olympic Legacy Communities Scheme.

Commenting on Lucy's appointment, Jonathan Emery, Managing Director of Property at Lendlease, said:

"We are delighted to be welcoming Lucy to the team. With a wealth of experience in managing complex, mixed-use developments, Lucy was a natural fit for the role – and joins Lendlease at a time of unparalleled growth."

Lendlease's new Director of Town Planning, Lucy Bird, said:

"Lendlease is increasingly being recognised as a global leader in urban regeneration and is driving some of the UK's most recognisable development projects. I look forward to working with teams from across the business to continue to create the best places."
