Lend Lease Wins BBC Television Centre Refurbishment Job

London, 28 May 2013- LEND Lease, the integrated property and infrastructure group, has been appointed principal contractor to refurbish Stage 6 of BBC Television Centre.

Lend Lease has begun an 18-month programme of work at the White City site in West London, which is known to millions as the backdrop to myriad BBC programmes over the years. The Grade II-listed parts of the building will be retained while a number of perimeter buildings will be demolished and redeveloped into a mixed-use development to include office and studio space for the BBC.

The main feature of the refurbished Stage 6 will be a new lightwell with a bespoke ribbon-like staircase running down through the middle of the building. This will give the new tenants ample helpings of natural light as well as a unique staircase to access the floors.

This latest contract builds on Lend Lease's relationship with the BBC, having previously delivered both the £500m MediaCityUK studios in Salford and the £450m refurbishment of Broadcasting House in London.

Simon Hipperson, Chief Executive of Lend Lease in EMEA, said: "We are excited to be working with the BBC again and we look forward to strengthening further the relationship that delivered MediaCityUK in Salford and Broadcasting House in London."

"This latest success continues the strong progress we have made so far in 2013. We started the year by announcing the £170m contract to build Kings Gate House for Land Securities and have also taken major steps forward on our £1.5bn Elephant & Castle project. The first cranes will go in the air at One The Elephant next month."

Work started on site last month and is due for completion in late 2014.
