Kuppusamy retains his role as the Head of Digital Engineering for Integrated Solutions, Asia, which he has held since February 2019. He assumes leadership, management, and performance of the Digital business unit for the region.

Richard said, “I am excited to be working with a team of innovators that are breaking down boundaries in the physical world and revolutionising the places we create and the way in which we build. As a team, we look forward to driving new breakthroughs in the digitalisation of the built environment, the emergence of autonomous buildings, and leveraging the momentum we have already achieved as we strive to the development of a more sustainable, healthy world.”

Lendlease has also appointed Preetham Nadig as the Head of its Singapore Product Development Centre and the Vice President of Engineering for Lendlease Digital, Asia. In his new role, Nadig will be responsible for driving Lendlease Podium’s product technology roadmap and the development of digital solutions for the built environment.
