

Everyman Stratford International opens at Stratford Cross' Turing Building alongside 5,000 sq ft of independent F&B

Tenant mix strengthened at Stratford Cross with boutique cinema operator and local restaurants Templar and Hera

London, 18 December 2024

Lendlease has confirmed the opening of anchor leisure tenant, Everyman at the Turing Building in Stratford Cross. Cultural and creative hub, Stratford Cross, has also welcomed European all-day dining restaurant, Templar, and Greek-inspired restaurant, Hera.

The new 10,900 sq ft Everyman cinema features 253 plush velvet sofas and armchairs across three screens, hosting movies, theatre screenings, and events. The venue includes an outdoor terrace, a lounge serving signature Everyman dishes, and a full cocktail bar. The opening coincides with completion of the Turing Building at Stratford Cross, which provides 350,000 sq ft of amenity-rich Grade A office space designed to inspire collaboration and support new ways of working.

Joining Everyman is the 1,225 sq ft modern European small plates restaurant and wine bar, Templar, which has opened near the London Stadium and East Bank Cultural Quarter. As the sister venue to Darkhorse in East Village, Templar marks an exciting addition to Stratford Cross, reflecting Lendlease's commitment to supporting and nurturing local businesses. The restaurant offers an accessible menu of small and sharing plates, featuring seasonal ingredients, along with a selection of low-intervention wines.

On the nearby Arber Way, Greek-inspired Hera blends traditional and contemporary cooking techniques in a 3,900 sq ft space, which also features a heated outdoor terrace and a spacious bar area with seating.

These announcements underscore Lendlease's dedication to developing a well-rounded amenity mix at Stratford Cross, combining popular cinema brands such as Everyman with local dining options, to enhance the experience for its growing community of residents, workers, and visitors.

Guy Thomas, Head of Leasing at Lendlease, commented: “The opening of Everyman, along with the recent additions of Templar and Hera, comes at an exciting time for Stratford Cross as the much anticipated Turing building is now complete. These new openings bring a fresh energy to the area, blending a well-known name with unique local dining spots. We’re pleased to offer something for everyone in our growing community and to create spaces where residents, workers, and visitors can come together and enjoy a variety of experiences.”

An Everyman spokesperson added: “The Turing Building is the perfect setting for our newest cinema, Everyman Stratford International, bringing our elevated cinematic experience to a vibrant and creative East London community. Ideally located in this landmark destination, the cinema will cater to a diverse audience — from professionals and local residents to visitors. We’re excited to welcome everyone to our 47th UK location and look forward to becoming part of this dynamic neighbourhood.”
